FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW MEXICO

CHRISTINE CARRILLO,

Plaintiff,

v.

No. 19-cv-0531 SMV

Commissioner of the Social Security Administration,

Defendant.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

THIS MATTER is before the Court on Plaintiff's Motion for Order Authorizing Attorney Fees Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 406(b) and Supporting Memorandum [Doc. 36], filed on April 16, 2021. The motion seeks $8,847.50 in attorney fees for legal services rendered before the Court. Id. at 1. The Commissioner filed no response, and time for doing so has passed. The parties have consented to the undersigned's entering final judgment in this case. [Doc. 8]. Having reviewed the brief, the record, and the applicable caselaw and being otherwise fully advised in the premises, I find that the Motion is well-taken and should be granted. Plaintiff will be awarded $8,847.50 in attorney fees.

Procedural History

The Commissioner denied Plaintiff's application for a period of disability, disability insurance benefits, and supplemental security income. See Tr. 1, 12. After exhausting her <sup>1</sup> Andrew Saul is the current Commissioner of Social Security. Pursuant to Rule 25(d) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Andrew Saul should be substituted for Acting Commissioner Nancy A. Berryhill as the Defendant in this suit. No further action needs to be taken to continue this suit by reason of the last sentence of section 205(g) of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. § 405(g).

administrative appeals, Plaintiff timely filed an action in this Court on June 10, 2019. [Doc. 1]. Ultimately, the Commissioner acquiesced and agreed to a voluntary reversal and remand. [Docs. 29, 30]. On remand, an ALJ issued a final administrative decision fully favorable to Plaintiff on December 11, 2020. Notice of Decision – Fully Favorable [Doc. 36-1] at 1–10. Plaintiff was awarded past-due benefits totaling approximately $59,390. Notice of Award [Doc. 36-1] at 16; see [Doc. 36] at 5. The Commissioner has withheld $14,847.50 to pay for representation before the Administration and before this Court.<sup>2</sup> [Doc. 36-1] at 17; see [Doc. 36] at 2.

Plaintiff and her counsel entered into a contingency fee agreement providing that Plaintiff would pay her attorney 25% of any back benefits in exchange for representation in federal court. This fee would be in addition to any fee that Plaintiff had agreed to pay for representation before the Administration. Fee Agreement—Federal Court [Doc. 36-1] at 24. Plaintiff’s counsel has requested $8,847.50 for representation before this Court, which is about 14.9% of the back benefits awarded. [Doc. 36] at 6.

Standard

A court may award attorney’s fees pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 406(b)(1) where the claimant receives a favorable administrative decision following a remand of the case to the Secretary for further consideration. In relevant part, the statute at issue states:

Whenever a court renders a judgment favorable to a claimant under this subchapter who was represented before the court by an attorney, the court may determine and allow as part of its judgment a reasonable fee for such representation, not in excess of 25 percent of the total of the past-due benefits to which the claimant is entitled by reason of such judgment . . . .

42 U.S.C. § 406(b)(1) (2018). “The tenor of 406(b) is permissive rather than mandatory. It says that the court may make such an award, not that such an award shall be made.” Whitehead v. Richardson, 446 F.2d 126, 128 (6th Cir. 1971). The Whitehead court reasoned that “Congress recognized the difference between the mandatory term ‘shall’ and the permissive term ‘may.’” Id. Congress used “shall” in 406(a) and “may” in 406(b) where the statute specifically provides that the court is expected to determine whether to allow attorney’s fees. Id. Traditionally, an award of attorney’s fees is a matter within sound discretion of the court. Id.

In Gisbrecht v. Barnhart, the Supreme Court concluded that § 406(b) was designed by Congress to “control, not displace, fee agreements between Social Security benefit claimants and their counsel.” 535 U.S. 789, 792 (2002). Courts should review fee arrangements “as an independent check, to assure that they yield reasonable results in particular cases.” Id. at 807. The statute imposes the 25%-of-past-due-benefits limitation on fees as a ceiling, not as a standard to be used to substantiate reasonableness. Id. at 808–09.

Courts have reduced attorney fee “recovery based on the character of the representation and the results the representation achieved.” Id. at 808. In cases where plaintiffs’ attorneys have caused delays or provided substandard representation or if the benefits are large in comparison to the amount of time counsel spent on the case, courts have authorized reduced fees. Id.; see also McGuire v. Sullivan, 873 F.2d 974, 981 (7th Cir. 1989) (explaining that “the court should consider the reasonableness of the contingency percentage to make sure the attorney does not receive fees which are out of proportion to the services performed, the risk of loss and the other relevant considerations”). Ultimately, plaintiffs’ attorneys have the burden of showing that the fee sought is reasonable. Gisbrecht, 535 U.S. at 808. “Within the 25 percent boundary, . . . the attorney for the successful claimant must show that the fee sought is reasonable for the services rendered.” Id. at 807.

Analysis

First, the Court must determine if the Fee Agreement meets § 406(b)(1) guidelines. In relevant part, the Fee Agreement reads:

FEE AGREEMENT—FEDERAL COURT

. . . . If I am awarded benefits in federal court or if I am awarded benefits by the Social Security Administration following a remand ordered by [the] federal court in my case in which my attorney represented me, I agree to pay my attorney twenty-five percent (25%) of my and my family’s past-due benefits. . . .

This agreement is in addition to any previous fee agreement I have signed with my attorney for representation before the Social Security Administration. . . .

[Doc. 36-1] at 24.<sup>3</sup> Thus, the Fee Agreement meets § 406(b)(1)’s guideline of not exceeding 25% of the past-due benefits.

Second, the Court must review contingent fee agreements such as these “to assure that they yield reasonable results in particular cases.” Gisbrecht, 535 U.S. at 807. Plaintiff’s counsel has <sup>3</sup> The Fee Agreement was entered into by Plaintiff and attorney Michael D. Armstrong, individually on May 24, 2019. [Doc. 36-1] at 24. The attorney requesting fees at this time, however, is Laura J. Johnson on behalf of “Michael Armstrong Law Office, LLC” (“the firm”). [Doc. 36]. Ms. Johnson has provided an affidavit from Mr. Armstrong, averring Ms. Johnson is the managing member of the firm; that he, Mr. Armstrong, remains an employee of the firm; and that “[a]ll proceeds from my representation of claimants inures to the benefit of the firm.” [Doc. 36-1] at 33. Accordingly, the Court is satisfied that Ms. Johnson may collect on the Fee Agreement.

the burden of demonstrating that his request for fees is reasonable under the circumstances. Id. The reasonableness determination is “based on the character of the representation and the results the representation achieved.” Id. at 808. Factors relevant to the reasonableness of the fee request include: (1) whether the attorney’s representation was substandard; (2) whether the attorney was responsible for any delay in resolution of the case; and (3) whether the contingency fee is disproportionately large in comparison to the amount of time spent on the case. Id.

Having reviewed the particular facts of this case in light of the Gisbrecht factors, I find that Plaintiff’s counsel has shown that $8,847.50 is reasonable for representation of Plaintiff before this Court. Counsel has ably represented Plaintiff before this Court, totaling 23.6 hours of attorney time, [Doc. 36-1] at 21, and 3.2 hours of paralegal time, id. at 22. Counsel’s representation was more than adequate; the results achieved were excellent. See [Doc. 29]. Next, the Court finds that Plaintiff’s counsel was not responsible for any appreciable delay in resolution of the case.

Finally, the Court finds that the award would not be disproportionately large in comparison to the amount of time spent on the case (23.6 attorney hours and 3.2 paralegal hours). See Affidavit of Attorney Katherine Hartung O’Neal [Doc. 36-1] at 21; Affidavit of Paralegal Brandon Long id. at 22. Without accounting for the paralegal hours, such an award would equate to an effective hourly rate of $374.89. Considering counsel’s experience and performance in this case, the Court finds the rate to be reasonable.<sup>4</sup>
